

THE BELL TELEPHONE IN BUSINESS

THIS IS THE DAY OF QUICK ACTION.

The man who can make a price on the spot is the man who wins trade.

YOU CAN'T DO BUSINESS

Without a Bell Telephone any more than you could do without the United States Mail

CALL UP CONTRACT DEPARTMENT, MAIN 3525

GEO. A. DICKEL & CO.,
Distillers,
Nashville, Tenn.
DAVID NICHOLSON, Distributor.

BAILEY DECLARES WAR ON CANNON

If Speaker Does Not Recede From His Position on Statehood, Texas Senator Will Force Extra Session of Congress.

The Republic Bureau.
Wells Building, 14th and F Streets, Washington, Feb. 27.—The strongest of pressure is being brought to bear to force Speaker Cannon to retreat from his demand for the House bill or none in the statehood fight. The Senate and a majority of the House are united in an effort to induce the Speaker to modify his position. To-night it appears that even the positive Mr. Cannon will not be able to continue his arbitrary stand.

Matters reached such a pass to day that Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas let it be known that, unless an opportunity be given to vote on a conference report on the bill, he will talk supply bills to death.

This is easily within the power of a determined Senator at the present time. Half an hour enough of the session remains for consideration of the appropriations, and a single bill could end up the entire business of the Government, all bring about an extra session of Congress.

Unanimous consent will be required to move to adjourn, and it is not likely to be made available. In view of the fact Senator Beveridge of Indiana, chairman of the conferees on the part of the Senate, announced to-night the terms of compromise acceptable to the Senate organization.

"I am willing to accept any one of three," Senator Beveridge said. "The first is the original bill. The second is the bill with the Corkum amendment, which would allow Arizona to vote separately on acceptance of joint statehood. The third is a joint bill of Indian Territory and Oklahoma, with the exclusion of both New Mexico and Arizona."

FAVORABLE PROPOSITION.

On the first proposition no action could be had in the Senate. On the second it is extremely improbable that all the opposition could agree. But upon the third many interested Senators and all statehood advocates are anxious to work. They have principally Senators Baileys, who is eager to reckon with who obstinately adhere to the bill as it passed the Senate, leaving single statehood for New Mexico. Senator Baileys is of the opinion that these Senators would come into line if Speaker Cannon were to recede.

Speaker Bailey introduced the Oklahoma and Indian appropriation bill to-day, and the second bill to-day is a rider to the Indian appropriation bill. He subsequently said that he did not intend to push this amendment by the conference. The reason of his move was to serve definite notice that, unless some report should be made on the amendment, he would insist on the amendment, so that the consequences be what they might to the Indian and other supply bills.

Speaker Bailey said he will do his best to carry out his daring programme should the Speaker veto the bill in conference.

An executive committee of 150 in both houses favors the admission of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, and on this point the opposition is a one-man opposition.

The new rector of the Church of the Redeemer was strongly recommended to the vestry and curate by Bishop Taylor, who is locally attracted by his work in the Eastern city.

Mr. Brown is personally known to the Reverend Charles Biddle, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Angels, New York. His work at this charge has been excellent, the bending valuable assistance to the rectory in developing a strong organization.

The new rector of the Church of the Redeemer was strongly recommended to the vestry and curate by Bishop Taylor, who is locally attracted by his work in the Eastern city.

Mr. Brown is personally known to the Reverend Charles Biddle, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Angels, New York. His work at this charge has been excellent, the bending valuable assistance to the rectory in developing a strong organization.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.

We trust that each individual Christian in his own private place of prayer, enter into a spirit of quietness and earnestness, and strive to hold on and pray away whatever is out of harmony with the will and commandments of God.

Finally, that each member of our church communicate with his pastor concerning his family affairs about them for a like service at their respective parishes.

Thirdly, that each renew his covenant with his Lord, and faithfully meet his obligations.

The time has not yet been reached for holding daily services in our regular places for the sake of convenience, but we hope our officers and members of our church to insure more sincerely and earnestly, if the time is not now ripe, the observance of the Sabbath. Our church should be with us, with such help as may be needed when each

comes to us, and when we are in trouble.

Fourthly, that we, under the influence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, be always meeting together for self-examination, confession, and intercession. This is a great responsibility which we shall make upon their people if we have examinations, confessions, and intercessions.